Dear Csaba Szigeti-

You should have already received notice from Cindy Brewer that your paper has been accepted for presentation at ICC 2017 in Washington, D.C. I am pleased to inform you that your submission is also being considered for inclusion in the edited book Advances in Cartography and GIScience - Selections from the International Cartographic Conference 2017. A final decision will be made in February based on your revision.

Your revised manuscript is due February 10. My task is to get the completed book to Springer by March 9 in order to be published in time for the conference. That means we have less than two months to finish this project.

Below you will find comments from all reviewers. Included in these comments is a longer note from me surrounded by these symbols:  (you may have already seen these in Cindy's email but some of these comments have been updated since then). This list represents the items you need to address in the revision. Keep a record of how you dealt with each issue. Submit this list and your responses along with the revised manuscript. The final decision on whether to include your submission will be made in February based on the re-write, the general presentation, and formatting.

I hope to publish all of the papers that have been selected. If your paper does not ultimately make it to the book, it will still be part of the online proceedings. Also, the final decision that will be made in February does not affect the status of your presentation at the conference. You will still be giving your paper or poster.

Springer does not offer a copyediting service that would be able to complete its work within the time available. This means that you must make sure that all problems with the presentation (i.e., spelling/grammar) are resolved before the revised manuscript is submitted.

The Springer template that was provided for preparation of the manuscript is available at: http://maps.unomaha.edu/Peterson/ICC2017/Track_B_template.docx

The template now shows how figures should be referenced within the text (this was missing in the initial version).

A major consideration for this book on Cartography and GIScience is the quality of your graphics. Line drawings must be submitted in a vector-based format (ai, eps, svg). Raster-based graphics must be in a non-compressed format such as PNG (not JPG) with sufficient resolution. Screenshots should be cropped appropriately.

Here is a list of items to submit on February 10:

- 1) A revised document in Word format (.doc or .docx) that follows the template;
- 2) The list of revisions – both my list and your responses;
- 3) A folder with all graphical illustrations. Line drawings should be submitted in .ai, .svg, or .eps format. Images should be submitted in PNG or TIFF format (no JPGs) and must have sufficient resolution for publication. All graphic files must be labeled in order with the number of the figure.
- 4) Any graphics protected by copyright will need a completed Permission Request Form available here: http://maps.unomaha.edu/Peterson/ICC2017/Permission_Request_Form.doc
Scan completed forms.
- 5) A signed and scanned Springer Contributor Consent to Publish form available here: http://maps.unomaha.edu/Peterson/ICC2017/Contributor_Consent_to_Publish.docx

All three documents referenced in this email (template, permission request form, and consent to publish form) are available at: <http://maps.unomaha.edu/Peterson/ICC2017/index.htm>

Send all of these documents in a zipped folder to mpeterson@unomaha.edu by February 10. If more than 20 MB in size, use Dropbox or similar sharing service and send me the link.

If you have any questions, feel free to contact me. I look forward to your revision and getting this book to press and available for the conference.

- Michael Peterson
