Brief description of the completed short term study program:

During the short term research the participant carried out in depth the analysis the British perceptions of the Balkan Wars of 1912-13, especially the ethnic conflicts. He also examined the contemporary atmosphere wherein the events perceived and how it changed due to the war. This will be concluded in the participant's BA thesis.

Participant also carried out a preliminary research in the history of the different British pressure-groups concerned with the Balkans. In his work he mainly analyzed the so-called Balkan Committee's activities in forming British public opinion and its effects on the decision-makers of the Foreign Office.
