The Kellner Scholarships are provided by the Kellner Foundation, a private American foundation established by the family of Mr. George A. Kellner, a Hungarian-American entrepreneur and investor. The Scholarships were created in 1991 to honor Mr. Paul J. Kellner, the father of Mr. George A. Kellner, a Hungarian-born businessman and a leading supporter of Hungary's political, social and economic development through education.

Since 1991, the Kellner Foundation has enabled over 120 Hungarian students from the Eotvos Lorand University in Budapest (ELTE) and Szeged University of Sciences (SZTE) to study in the United States for two semesters at Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut, or at Bard College in Annandale-on-Hudson in upper New York State.

The Kellner Foundation undertakes to sponsor BERNAT IVANCSICS during the academic year of 2013/2014 at TRINITY COLLEGE by providing for their tuition, accommodation and board, as well as pertinent academic costs and living expenses.

Students are expected to return upon their academic year and implement the knowledge they gained during their stay in the United States, returning with skills and a desire to contribute to and improve their home, Hungary. Kellner Scholars are strongly encouraged to foster strong Hungarian-American relations, build a robust civil society, and engage in public dialogue about professional and cultural issues in the framework of regular events and publications. The thorough application process results in the selection of able-minded students who, following their period of study in the United States, end up studying or working in diverse fields such as diplomacy, academic or civil service, journalism, venture capital, finance, the arts, and the non-profit sector.

Sincerely,

George A. Kellner
